

The Prospects of Me Dating You: An Introduction

Considering that It is been 3 years since author has confess, author think it will be author last attempt to making things like this since author must adjust their act toward you based on your answer later. Using an observation method, author creates an analysis which aims to make the reader consider her answer to determine the relationship with the author. However, this article have limitations such as limited time because the author suffer from overthinking every night.

Keywords: idk the keywords

Introduction

Dating is often seen as 'scary' things to do for someone who already experience toxic partner/s and will make them scared to commit for another relationship. However, when you meet the right person, it will make you loved and safe. According to the author itself, bad dating experience in the past also lead to some issue such as attachment and commitment issue. Moreover, few mental illness like bipolar and borderline personality disorder also possible.

In the context of healthy relationship, author argue that it can be come to real life if the parties are committed to it, respect their boundaries, communicate and respond the problem, and make time for their partner when they need each other. For example, when they got into an argument, the right thing to do is talk about it and find the solution, instead of silent treatment. A growing body of notes on the way of author feel about you has been dominated by author overthinking thought, with very limited context discusses of why you should date me. In order to fill the gap, this paper try to examines why you should date the author in order to have a great partner. Using qualitative method, author try to self-observe and create analysis from it.

This paper divided of four sections. The first section explores the notes that I have been send to you. The next part is about the method of this paper. The third part is the analysis of this paper and consist of two sub-chapter. The last is conclusion.

Literature Review

The author has been writing such a cringey notes for you since 2021 which in total approx. 30 notes but the author only send you few notes. The first notes that author send to you when the author already have a crush on you is at your birthday on 2019 maybe? But the author have not confessed to you in that day. In the next year, the author said that they falling for you personality which still valid until now. Furthermore, author start to write more-serious notes from October 2021 which sometimes make the author overthink and got into disagreement with you. However, considering that we communicate it very well and understanding each other, there are no long-term fight until this paper published.

Method

The current paper aims to explore the advantages of dating the author and be considered when you choose your answer for 1.5 years question of ‘what’s our relationship?’. To answer the questions, the author this article unpacks the advantages and limitations of dating me with self-observation.

Result and Discussion

The Advantages

The author has been have crush on you for three years (in 27 November 2022) and already go through every version of you. Then, the author think that she can handle your personality very well. Furthermore, in these three years, author argue that she can be a good partner for you with these reasons below:

1. Good listener
2. Available 24/7
3. Well-understanding of your personality
4. Very good at empathy
5. Huggable
6. Not easily getting mad
7. (self-claim) smart
8. Will give you affirmation and validation everytime you need

Limitations

Considering the author is still a human being, ofcourse she still have limitations that is:

1. Easily get jealous
2. Emotional person
3. Sometimes annoying
4. Tend to show it if she get angry
5. Overthink a lot
6. Too lazy to go out

Conclusion

The author made this paper not for forcing you to answer it with particular answer. You still have your own choice and the author will respect every decision you choose. Furthermore, whatever your choice will not make the author leaving you (but maybe will put some boundaries because it is not fair to treating someone like a girlfriend without being in that kind of relationship). Moreover, the author of this paper hope you will not regret every decision you make in the future. In the end, the author will ask you this particular question and please answer it in the day we graduate. Do you want to be my girlfriend?